

Murray the K was born on Valentine's Day. That may explain why he was married six times. Yet a relationship he could have would endure for generations: a place on the list of inductees in the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame.

He's in the Radio Hall of Fame and has been for decades. But the Rock Hall has played hard to get. Not that he wanted to date it – he's been dead since '82, which is a year before it was born.

Murray wasn't a performer in a rock 'n' roll sense. But on the air or onstage, he was part of the act, wedding singers and musicians with a ring of opportunity that helped them reach more listeners and fans.

Next Valentine's Day will mark his 100th birthday. He's too old (and too deceased) to get married, but if you think that a nomination to the Rock Hall as a non-performer would make a fitting gift (and you know anyone on the nominating committee), say, "I do," and ask them to wed themselves to Murray's nomination.

He'd thank you, but he's busy staging "Rock 'n' Roll Heaven."
